SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds as follows:

(1) In the 1980s and 1990s, pharmaceutical companies began developing new drugs for pain treatment, including extended release oxycodone. These companies aggressively marketed these drugs to the medical community as a way to address “under-treatment” of physical pain. Drug companies distributed 76,000,000,000 oxycodone and hydrocodone pain pills nationwide from 2006 to 2012.

(2) The combination of a rising number of prescriptions, misinformation about the addictive properties of prescription opioids, and the perception that prescription drugs are less harmful than illicit drugs has caused an increase in drug misuse.

(3) As legitimate production and illegal diversion of opioids skyrocketed, so did the number of opioid overdose deaths. From 1999 to 2017, almost 218,000 people died in the United States from overdoses related to prescription opioids. More recently, fentanyl, a powerful synthetic opioid, surpassed prescription opioids as the most lethal overdose substance and now is linked to nearly 3 times as many deaths.

(4) The scale of the opioid crisis is staggering:
(A) In 2018, approximately 10,300,000 people in the United States age 12 and older misused opioids.

(B) On average, 130 people in the United States die every day from an opioid overdose.

(C) The opioid crisis has cost the United States economy at least $631,000,000,000.

(D) From 2013 to 2017, the number of children in foster care nationwide increased 10 percent to nearly 442,995. Parental drug use was cited as a factor in 36 percent of cases.

(5) The opioid crisis has also led to a cascade of other negative health impacts. For example, syringe sharing among people who inject drugs has led to increases in hepatitis C virus infections and infective endocarditis, as well as localized HIV outbreaks.

(6) The United States health care system has struggled to catch up to the crisis:

(A) The majority of people in the United States with an opioid use disorder do not receive substance use treatment, and many who do receive such treatment do not receive evidence-based treatment. Although medication-assisted treatment has been endorsed by the National Institutes of Health and the World Health Organization, only one-third of treatment programs offer any of the 3 drugs approved by the Food and Drug Administration for the treatment of opioid use disorder, and just 6 percent of medication-offering facilities provide all 3.

(B) Facilities that provide medications for the treatment of opioid disorder are concentrated in the Northeast and Southwest, leaving many of the areas hit hardest by the opioid crisis without access to evidence-based treatment. The need is particularly acute in rural areas, which often do not have enough providers to meet the demand.

(C) Unlike other health care needs, substance use treatment is largely funded by State and local revenues and Federal block grants, rather than the Medicare program, the Medicaid program, and private insurance.

(D) While new substances, particularly synthetic drugs, continue to make inroads into communities in the United States, funding streams are often dedicated to particular substances, limiting providers’ ability to adapt to changing needs.
(E) The stigma associated with substance use disorder prevents people from seeking treatment. Too often, people enter substance use treatment only after committing a criminal offense, whether through a court mandate, as a condition of parole or probation supervision, or as a condition of regaining employment after conviction. In 2003, 36 percent of all substance use treatment admissions, 40 percent of all alcohol abuse treatment admissions, and 57 percent of all marijuana use treatment admissions were referrals from the criminal justice system.

(F) The stigma of substance use disorder also limits people’s ability to find jobs and housing. These obstacles are exacerbated by the criminalization of substance use disorder—even convictions for drug possession for personal use can create lifelong collateral consequences. The absence of stable housing and employment make it even more difficult for people to live drug free.

(7) Not all people in the United States have equal access to substance use treatment in the community. Current research has found that Black and Latinx Americans are less likely to receive substance use treatment when controlling for other relevant factors, like socioeconomic status.

(8) Inadequate access to substance use treatment can exacerbate other health disparities. Individuals with substance use disorders have higher rates of suicide attempts than individuals in the general population, high health care expenses, and significant disability.

(9) A comprehensive public health approach that tackles both the causes and the consequences of substance use disorder is necessary to stem the tide.

SEC. 402. DEFLECTION AND PRE-ARREST DIVERSION.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Law enforcement officers and other first responders are at the front line of the opioid epidemic. However, a traditional law enforcement response to substance use often fails to disrupt the cycle of addiction and arrest, or reduce the risk of overdose.

(2) Law enforcement-assisted diversion and deflection programs have the potential to improve public health, decrease the number of people entering the criminal justice system for low-level offenses, and address racial disparities.

(3) According to the Bureau of Justice Assistance of the Department of Justice, “Five pathways have been most commonly associated with opioid overdose prevention and diversion to treatment.” The 5 pathways are—

(A) “self-referral”, in which—

(i) an individual voluntarily initiates contact with a first responder, such as a law enforcement officer, firefighter, or emergency medical services professional, for a treatment referral (without fear of arrest); and

(ii) the first responder personally introduces the individual to a treatment provider (commonly known as a “warm handoff”);

(B) “active outreach”, in which a law enforcement officer or other first responder—

(i) identifies or seeks out individuals in need of substance use disorder treatment; and

(ii) makes a warm handoff of such an individual to a treatment provider, who engages the individual in treatment;

(C) “naloxone plus”, in which a law enforcement officer or other first responder engages an individual in treatment as part of an overdose response;

(D) “officer prevention referral”, in which a law enforcement officer or other first responder initiates treatment engagement with an individual, but no criminal charges are filed against the individual; and
(E) “officer intervention referral”, in which—

(i) a law enforcement officer or other first responder initiates treatment engagement with an individual; and

(ii)(I) criminal charges are filed against the individual and held in abeyance; or

(II) a citation is issued to the individual.

(4) As of the date of enactment of this Act, there are no national best practices or guidelines for law enforcement-assisted diversion and deflection programs.

(b) USE OF BYRNE JAG FUNDS FOR DEFLECTION AND DIVERSION PROGRAMS.—Section 501 of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (34 U.S.C. 10152) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(1)(E), by inserting before the period at the end the following: “, including law enforcement-assisted deflection programs and law enforcement-assisted pre-arrest and pre-booking diversion programs (as those terms are defined in subsection (h))”; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:
“(h) LAW ENFORCEMENT-ASSISTED DEFLECTION PROGRAMS AND LAW ENFORCEMENT-ASSISTED PRE-ARREST AND PRE-BOOKING DIVERSION PROGRAMS.—

“(1) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection:

“(A) COVERED GRANT.—The term ‘covered grant’ means a grant for a deflection or diversion program awarded under subsection (a)(1)(E).

“(B) DEFLECTION OR DIVERSION PROGRAM.—The term ‘deflection or diversion program’ means a law enforcement-assisted deflection program or a law enforcement-assisted pre-arrest or pre-booking diversion, including programs where—

“(i) an individual voluntarily initiates contact with a first responder for a treatment referral without fear of arrest and receives a warm handoff to treatment;

“(ii) a law enforcement officer or other first responder identifies or seeks out individuals in need of substance use treatment and a warm handoff is made to a treatment provider, who engages them in treatment;
“(iii) a law enforcement officer or other first responder engages an individual in treatment as part of an overdose response;

“(iv) a law enforcement officer or other first responder initiates treatment engagement, but no criminal charges are filed;

“(v) a law enforcement officer or other first responder initiates treatment engagement; [and/or]

[“(vi) charges are filed and held in abeyance or a citation is issued.]

“(C) LAW ENFORCEMENT-ASSISTED DEFLECTION PROGRAM.—The term ‘law enforcement-assisted deflection program’ means a program under which a law enforcement officer, when encountering an individual who is not engaged in criminal activity but appears to have a substance use disorder or mental health disorder, instead of taking no action at the time of contact or taking action at a later time, attempts to connect the individual to substance use disorder treatment providers or mental health treatment providers—
“(i) without the use of coercion or fear of arrest; and “(ii) using established pathways for connections to local, community-based treatment.

“(D) LAW ENFORCEMENT-ASSISTED PRE-ARREST OR PRE-BOOKING DIVERSION PROGRAM.—The term ‘law enforcement-assisted pre-arrest or pre-booking diversion program’ means a program—

“(i) under which a law enforcement officer, when encountering an individual who has committed an offense that is non-violent and is not a crime against a person, and the primary cause of which appears to be based on a substance use disorder or the mental health disorder of the individual, instead of arresting the individual, or instead of booking the individual after having arrested the individual, attempts to connect the individual to substance use disorder treatment providers or mental health treatment providers—

“(I) without the use of coercion; and “(I) using established pathways for connections to local, community-based treatment;
“(ii) under which, in the case of pre-arrest diversion, a law enforcement officer described in clause (i) may decide to—“(I) issue a civil citation; or “(II) take no action with respect to the offense for which the officer would otherwise have arrested the individual described in clause (i); and “(iii) that may authorize a law enforcement officer to refer an individual to substance use disorder treatment providers or mental health treatment providers if the individual appears to have a substance use disorder or mental health disorder and the officer suspects the individual of chronic violations of law but lacks probable cause to arrest the individual (commonly known as a ‘social contact referral’).
“(2) Sense of Congress regarding deflec-tion or diversion programs.—It is the sense of Congress that a deflection or diversion program funded under this subpart should not exclude indi-individuals who are chronically exposed to the criminal justice system.

“(3) REPORTS TO ATTORNEY GENERAL.—Not later than 2 years after the date on which a State or unit of local government is awarded a covered grant, and each year thereafter until the date that is 1 year after the date on which the period of the covered grant ends, the State or unit of local government shall submit a report to the Attorney General that includes information relating to the deflection or diversion program carried out by the State or unit of local government, including information relating to—

“(A) the goals of the deflection or diversion program;

“(B) any evidence-based interventions carried out under the deflection or diversion program;

“(C) outcomes of the deflection or diversion program, which shall—

“(i) be reported in a manner that distinguishes the outcomes based on the categories of, with respect to the participants in the deflection or diversion program—
“(I) the race of the participants;

and

“(II) the gender of the participants; and

“(ii) include information relating to the rate of reincarceration among participants in the deflection or diversion program, if available; and

“(D) expenditures under the deflection or diversion program.”.

nificant experience in working with law enforcement agencies, community-based treatment providers, and other community-based human service providers to and racial equity of deflection or diversion programs, in order to—

(A) help State and units of local government launch and expand deflection or diversion programs;

(B) develop best practices for deflection or diversion teams, which shall include—

(i) recommendations on community input and engagement in order to implement deflection or diversion programs as rapidly as possible and with regard to the particular needs of a community, including regular community meetings and other mechanisms for engagement with—

(I) law enforcement agencies;

providers and other community-based human service providers;
